

Carrie and Annie.

The missionary schooner Carrie and Annie, after a long and stormy voyage from Ponape, Caroline Islands, arrived yesterday afternoon, ending a cruise which began at this port August 2. Captain George Ekren, who commands the Carrie and Annie, was accompanied by his wife, who has had more than her fill, she says, of cruising in Carrie and Annie sized schooners. The elements celebrated the new year by combining in an effort to send the little schooner to the bottom. She shipped many seas and her crew had to work hard to weather the gale, but the little craft came through intact.

During the Carrie and Annie's stay at Ponape the German gunboat Condor arrived there on its way to New Guinea to avenge the assassination by cannibal natives of five Catholic priests and five sisters, who had been working among Germany's South Sea possessions as missionaries. One of the priests massacred is said to have been the oldest missionary in the South Sea. The Condor was going to call at Yap for coal and then proceed to New Guinea and there shoot up a few villages to inspire the savage inhabitants with respect for the Kaiser and reverence for the dead missionaries' religion.

The Carrie and Annie carried from here stores for the missionary stations in the Carolines. She came home in ballast. H. H. Moore of Pittsburgh was a passenger on the Carrie and Annie for the round trip.—S. F. Call.

Concord Raised.

The schooner Concord, which was bought by Alex. Lyle after it had sunk at its moorings in Naval Row, has been raised and is now on the marine railway being repaired. Aside from some open seams the vessel is in very good condition and with the present overhauling she will be as good as ever.

IMMOLATED ON THE ALTAR OF ANCIENT TEMPLE MODEL

Ghastly Coincidence in Fatal Accident to Herman Kukahiko—Jury Finds No Blame Attaches to Others.

Terrible in its bare nature as was the accidental killing of the native boy, Herman Kukahiko, at the Bishop Museum on Friday last, there was in the happening a most gruesome coincidence. It was something of a kind that always stirs up the latent superstitiousness of the native Hawaiian mind.

With a sheer fall of 47 feet, Kukahiko crashed through the heavy plate glass casing of the model of an ancient Hawaiian heiau upon the main floor of Hawaiian Hall. He landed squarely upon the altar of the temple, representing the real thing whereon human sacrifices in Hawaii's dark ages were offered. His blood flowed out upon the sawdust in the very place where the lifeline of the oldtime victim of idolatry would have trickled.

It was visitors' day at the Museum and it was the unfortunate boy's curiosity over the movements of the visiting public which brought about his dreadful ending. The particulars came out at the inquest which concluded yesterday afternoon with a unanimous verdict that the cause of death was accidental and due altogether to the victim's own inadvertence. Composing the jury were Charles Marques, J. H. Schnack, F. W. Makinney, James Bicknell and Ahia.

When Fred Harrison, the contractor employing Kukahiko at the time of his death, heard downtown of the accident he became much perturbed, fearing that it might have been caused by some overlooked fault of rope or scaffold where his men engaged in repairs of the Museum roof were working. The particulars he ascertained upon reaching the place, and later verified at the inquest, reassured him on the score of whatever responsibility he might have had as an employer.

Kukahiko had been sent for something to a room directly under the roof utilized as a tool room by the workmen. Instead of attending directly to his errand he entered the skylight room adjoining the tool room. After the accident his finger marks were discovered in the coating of dust upon the skylight panes, as if he had been rubbing off the dust to obtain a view of the people and objects down in Hawaiian Hall. He must have lost his balance in his attempted sight-seeing and fallen through the skylight, as a shattered pane of glass 33 inches square murely attested.

The dead lad was 17 years of age. He had shipped as a sailor on the ship Erskine M. Phelps, but his mother refused to allow him to go to sea. Sad to relate, when the boy returned to his home he struck his mother in the face, in an outburst of anger at her interference with his sea-faring intention.

Mr. Harrison, besides paying a full week's wages for the last three days' work of the lad, paid the funeral expenses. The dam-

WAR IN MANCHURIA IN MOVING PICTURES

With rather a shivery, shakey effect in the smaller figures, but with the larger pictures brought out in startlingly life-like manner, there was presented at the Methodist church last night a series of kineoscope pictures of the Russo-Japanese war.

The church was crowded to the doors with an audience made up in about equal proportions of whites and Japanese, and the number of Japanese children in the house was surprisingly large. The lantern was set up in the back part of the body of the church, throwing the pictures upon a large screen at the back, and the lights and the views were manipulated by a couple of Japanese experts, while another Japanese somewhere forward in the dark explained the pictures, his remarks being interpreted into English by Rev. Mr. Wadman, pastor of the church.

There were thirty-nine pictures, all told, presented, some of them calculated to give decided thrills to the audience. And there was plenty of applause as the best of the pictures were flashed on the screen, this being particularly noticeable at the presentation of the "Battle of Port Arthur" as seen from the Japanese fleet, and at the picture showing the destruction of the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk, as seen through a telescope by a Russian officer on the bridge of one of the Czar's boats. A fencing contest between Japanese soldiers, showing the use of the weapons and armor of the olden days also drew loud applause.

Altogether, the show was a good one, well worth witnessing.

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM.

This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness, break-down, as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (for they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same; the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weariness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is absolutely essential in all such cases is INCREASED VITALITY—VIGOR—VITAL STRENGTH AND ENERGY to throw off these morbid feelings, and experience proves that as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of the celebrated life-reviving tonic.

THERAPY NO. 2

than by any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions accompanying it, will the shattered health be restored, the EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRASH, and a new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, "used up" and valueless. This wonderful medicine is purely vegetable and innocuous, is agreeable to the taste—suitable for all constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a case of disease or derangement, whose main features are those of debility, that will not be speedily and permanently benefited by this never-failing recuperative essence, which is destined to cast into oblivion everything that had preceded it for this widespread and numerous class of human ailments.
